We are not disposed to affect any violent modesty at the cost of any large sacrifice of our interests. We publish a journal as a matter of business. The undertaking shows that we consider ourselves qualified for it. If there is any lack of modesty in the case, it is in the original undertaking. We should be poorly fitted for the business if we were not aware of the merits of the paper. And being aware of them, we have a right to refer to them, and to recommend them to the public. They are our stock in trade, our goods and chattels, our merchandise, and we have the same right to advertise them that a merchant has to recommend his stock-

We should be very incompetent for the newspaper business if we did not know that the DAILY PARSS is the best news-paper in the city. Strike out the heavy political documents-which sensible persons do not read-from our cotemporaries, and what a poor skeleton would remain. The smaller size of the Paxes is vastly more than made up by the greater labor and skill devoted to careful selection, sifting, rewriting and condensing news and literary matter, which enables us to give a general view of all departments of news, intelligence and literature, while our larger cotemporaries are limited by their heavy doses and easy wholesale clipping, to a narrow range of subjects. The reader finds the task of wading through a mass of matter reduced by the labor and skill of the news editor, and condensed from verbosity and diffuseness, until a variety of things are brought within a brief glance, a single one of which in their expanded form, would have absorbed the space of all, and then would not have been thought worthy the labor of reading. The white paper and the printing represent but a portion of the equivalent which the purchaser of the Dally Press receives for his one cent. There is included in it editorial labor in reducing a mass o heavy materials to dimensions which are a vast saving of time to the reader; and time to most of our readers is money. In this view it is not unreasonable to calculate that to every business man the Pages returns a hundred fold on the investment.

In the local department the Passs may challenge comparison with any of its larger. cotemporaries. There may not be so much of what one of Dickens's characters called "B. G. nonsense" about them as in some of the others, but the facts and incidents are convert them, as well as the righteous. Under Providence the growth of the Paras has been unprecedented in Western journalism; and we doubt if the circulation of any paper is so little marked by party or sectional lines. And we can not be indifferent to the evidence constantly furnished us of the sympathy and good-feeling that the Pages establishes with its readers. It could not be otherwise. The course of the Pages is onward. It is a Cincinnati institution, and its growth is identified with that of the

A Washington for South Carolina At the meeting of the medical students at New York, to decide on a course of treatment for the intestinal derangement of the Union, Colonel Dick, of Maryland, was introduced as "the man who gave Brooks the cane to whip Summer with," That is a fame to go down to posterity. In this blessed country accidents of birth do not make noblemen; but we have nature's nobility, founded on noble deeds and greatness of soul. As Brooks is dead, let the brave man who gave him the cane be made the President of the South Carolina Republic, and let his bones be enshrined in a Palmetto Mt. Vernon, the Mecca of Southern chivalry,

The Emperor of Austria has granted constitution to his empire. The details have not come to hand, but it has the appearance of local self-government for the provinces, and a representative control over the making of laws. If the autouncement is sustained by the details, Austria can now be classed. among constitutional governments. The concession does not include Venitis, propably because she is not yet prepared for it, as we say in America. She is probably reserved to complete that preparatory course of despotic training, which our democraticrepublican journals regard as indispensable to qualify the people for self-government.

DESCRIPTION AD REFRAGE Wonderful Coolness of Mind in the Fire-

When John Gilpin, a citizen of London and renown, and his laving apouse, after many years of prosperous thrift, one day resolved to have a day's pleasure in the country with their rising family, he was pleased to observe that his faithfu! wife did not forget her frugal habits in the delightful anticipation, but proposed that they should guard against any extravagance at the lan by taking with them a couple of bottles of wine from their own cellar. The gratification which this thoughtful economy excited in the breast of the worthy citizen, is thus

"John Gilpin kissed his loving wife, Rejoiced was he to find That, though on pleasure she was bent, She had a frugal mind."

It is pleasing to observe that the chivalry, ven in the very frensy of their disunion assion, always retain their frugal mind, When the Southern medical students in the New York institutions held a medical counsel on the the Union-a thing which is usually fatal to any constitution-they received the following dispatch from Richmond, which shows that behind the frowning Providence of seconsion and civil war, the thrifty chivalry of the Ancient Dominion can still see the miling face of profit and prosperity to their institutions: "RICHMOND, Friday, November 9.—South-ern students, welcome to Richmond, Bouth Carolina has seceded."

It will be observed that this did not say that Virginia had seceded, nor pledge her to secession; but, "Southern students welcome to Richmond; South Carolina has seceded." It was surely not requisite that South Carolina should secede, to make Southern students welcome to Richmond: and if Southern medical apprentices could not stay in the Union because South Carolina had gone out, kow could they go to Richmond when Virginia refuses to join her piteful little sister State? It strikes us that Richmond wished to do a stroke of business for her medical schools, on the secession movement, without taking any of its risk. It is very much like the cry of the devout Mussulman fruit seller: "In the name of the Prophet figs." Doubtless the shrewd dealers of Richmond have sent dispatches of a similar nature through the South, saying: "Southern merchants, South Carolina has secoded. The Richmond merchants welcome you." Or, "South Carolina has hoisted the Palmetto fing, and Richmond will sell you dry goods." Or, "South Carolina independence and Richmond boots and shoes."

This keen eye for thrift in the midst of such terrible excitement, offers great encouragement for the safety of the Union. There is no element so conservative as interest.

A Gleam of Hope for the Country. A terrible wrong has been inflicted on the South by the election of a Republican President, by the votes chiefly of Republicans. In the delicate condition in which the Union hangs at this time, when a breath might finish it, we will not aggravate the sense of this injury by painting the wrong as black as it is, and calling it the election of a Black Republican President. Our object is to soothe the feelings of the wronged, and rather make the injury seem lighter than it really is. But in spite of this terrible wrong, the South is not disposed to be unreasonable. Let Mr. Lincoln appoint a Cabinet there and up with the age.

Let him come out at once, with that community, and that it is so welcome in their proclamation which the New York Times is families. This appreciation is the chief re- urging from him, and disown his aggressive purposes, abandon the party associations into which he has been drawn by election necessities, announce a national conservative Cabinet, which shall be satisfactory to the of the mechanics and laboring men of the South, and pledge himself not to disturb the city, who have not been in the habit of existing balance of political power. Theatrical Manners.

Double entendres, with an indelicate alternative, or expressions which suggest an indelicate interpretation so that the demonstrations of the baser sort among the audience complete it, don't pay. They may be applauded by the ill-bred, but they do not make the Theater any more attractive, even to them; while they drive away the class of people on which, in this town, Theaters have got to depend for success. A distrust of the Theater as a school of morals, created by prejudice and preaching, is casily confirmed by any of these violations of taste and delicacy; and on an occasion when an unusual audience is brought out by some notoriety, damage may be done by some of these uncalled-for follies which a whole seasen will not overcome. People want to feel safe in places where they take their families. As we said at the beginning, it don't pay; and as Hamlet said in his advice to the players, "O! reform it altogether!". Secession and Flush Times. The Legislature of South Carolina has authorized her Banks to suspend speciepayment. It also proposes to borrow $400,-000. The Banks propose to take the loan, paying the State, of course, in its own coin, that is, notes of suspended Banks. When the loan was moved, a member said he was authorized by a friend to say that he would take $10,000 at five per cent. premium. As the Stocks of the Federal Government sold recently at a premium of one-and-a-fraction per cent., this handsome offer shows what a beneficial influence secession has on State eredit; and how much better the credit is of the States individually, than that of the firm. Mr. Coffin's offer was not taken. Probably the State can do vastly better than that abroad. Fox, the desperado who murdered Colonel Davenport in cold blood, at Rock Island, Ill, fifteen years ago, and has since then cluded arrest, was taken at Attica on Satur-

It is afflictive to the true patriot to see dousies breaking out among the Southern leaders, in this trying hour, when the energy of every soul should be bent on freeing his country. Gov. Letcher has informed Ex-Governor Wise that the latter has ceased to be Governor of Virginia and that he. Gov. Letcher, has succeeded to the functions of that officer and that the services of Gov. Wise in enlisting "Minute-men," are a little shead of his time, and will be called for when needed.

It is singular that the cold forms of the State Government should be imposed upon the zeal of Governor Wise. Revolutions are not usually carried on under the strict forms of existing governments. In a revolution, he is leader who is foremost on the foe; and, by the way he talks, no one can doubt that Governor Wise would be there: although he did propose to take to the Florida swamps, on the election of Lincoln, and from there defy the brief-legged Douglas to single combat.

This singular movement of Governor Letcher recalls to mind that but a few years ago he was an Abolitionist, and called slavery a curse and "a black vomit," and all sorts of profane names. When that is bred in the bone, it is rarely eradicated from the flesh; and this interference with the patriotic Wise is probably a new breaking out of the old complaint.

The Great Tribulation. Dr. Cumming has published another work o announce the end of the world. He gives it the sensational title of Redemption Draweth Nigh, or the Great Preparation. The following passage in it shows how the tender heart of the Doctor sorrows for the ills of humanity:

"I pity from my heart people that are always prosperous, people who have plenty of money, lands, estates, dignities. I pity rich men; I should not like to die a rich man. They have fewest of the seals and tokens of God's favor."

The book is dedicated to the Marchioness of Stafford, as an expression of thanks for her 'munificent aid," and probably of pity that the means of munificence deprived her of the "seals and tokens of God's favor."

WE often have occasion to notice the playful manner of the Gazette, in treating of religious subjects. It did not use to be so. Yesterday it had some comments in a lively satirical vein, on the prayer at the opening of the South Carolina Legislature, which the Gazette quotes at length, and a most excellent, national, conservative and timely prayer it was. But the Gazette intimates that it was intended in a Pickwickian sense; and that, while in manner and form it was national, the clergyman had a private understanding that it should be taken for secession. Such an idea shows that when the spirit of unbelief returns to an orthodox journal, it brings with it seven other spirits, and the last end of that journal is worse than the first.

NEWPORT NEWS.

THE EDITOR OF THE "FREE SOUTH" IN JAIL Some months ago, subsequent to the mob-bing of the Free South office, in this city, Wm. S. Bailey, editor and publisher of that journal, was arrested, charged with publishjournal, was arrested, charged with publishing an incendiary newspaper in a slave State. He was required to give $1,000 bail for his appearance at the Caronit Court, which will be held at Alexandria one week from next Menday. At that time his could not or would not furnish the required bail, and five citizens, viz. Judge Boyd, Squire Fearrons, A. Thornton, Esq., Hon Ira Root and Chas. J. Helm—now Consul to Havana—came forward and offered themselves as security. Mr. Bailey has often asserted that he was not indebted to these securities for this favor, that they did this in order to save the reputation of the town, and not to save the reputation of the town, and not to keep him out of jail. Yesterday his securi-tees held a meeting, and resolved to deliver tees held a meeting and resolved to deliver Mr. Bailey into the hands of the jailor, re-fusing their support any longer. He was accordingly placed in jail, where he will probably remain until taken before the Cir-cuit Court for trial.
